Inter Faith Week

Inter Faith Week is a programme of the Inter Faith Network for the UK.

The Inter Faith Network for the UK (IFN) was founded in 1987 to “advance public knowledge and mutual understanding of the teachings, traditions and practices of the different faith communities in Britain, including an awareness both of their distinctive features and their common ground and to promote good relations between persons of different faiths.”

IFN’s role is unique: linking national faith community representative bodies, local, regional and national inter faith bodies and academic and educational bodies with a focus on inter faith or multi-faith issues and working with them to deepen inter faith understanding and cooperation as part of working for the common good.

IFN carries out its work through raising awareness within wider society of the importance of inter faith issues, creating opportunities for linking and sharing of good practice, and providing advice and information to help the development of new inter faith initiatives and the strengthening of existing ones. Inter Faith Week is one of IFN’s major programmes.

IFN works for the public benefit and its wide ranging activity touches the lives of many thousands of people directly and through the organisations and initiatives with which it engages. Working with its member bodies is an important part of this. Each of those makes its own contribution to inter faith understanding and cooperation in the UK.

To find out more, or to make a donation to support IFN’s work of promoting inter faith understanding and cooperation, please visit www.interfaith.org.uk.

The Inter Faith Network for the UK closed in 2024, with outward facing operations ceasing in April.

In order to ensure that the material in IFN's publications remained available to the public, to inter faith practitioners, and to scholars after IFN's closure, the copyright status of publications has been changed.

“Inter Faith Week 2017 was an inspiring effort across all neighbourhoods and faiths across the United Kingdom, in building understanding, tolerance and a sense of community. These sentiments are so important as we build a country where everyone has the chance to succeed and where no one suffers discrimination because of their background, ethnicity, religion or belief.”

THE RT HON THERESA MAY MP, PRIME MINISTER

“We are greatly enriched by the diversity of faiths that call our country home, all of whom play an integral part in their local communities. Inter Faith Week is a terrific way for people to learn from one another and celebrate the tremendous amount we have in common.”

Foreword

Each year in November Inter Faith Week highlights the enormous contribution that faith communities make to society and the vital importance of inter faith understanding and cooperation.

Stories from 2017, Inspiration for 2018

We hope that the amazing array of activities laid out in this short report will inspire you to join the many faith and belief groups, local, regional and national inter faith organisations, charities, schools, colleges, universities, sports clubs, local authorities, government agencies, chaplaincies, businesses, and thousands of individuals who will be taking part this year!

Inter Faith Week 2018 will take place from 11-18 November in England, Wales and Northern Ireland – it will be the tenth such Week! More information about the 2018 Week can be found at www.interfaithweek.org/about

The Week begins on Remembrance Sunday – which this year is Armistice Centenary Day, marking a century since the end of the First World War. This will be an opportunity for people of many faiths and beliefs to come together to mark this, remembering the service of men and women of different backgrounds, both as combatants and non-combatants.

There are many great ways of marking the Week. This report will give you lots of ideas – as will the Inter Faith Week Toolkit, details of which are at the end of this report.

The Inter Faith Network is grateful to all who contributed to the production of this report by providing photographs and quotations, and for reporting on their experiences of the Week, whether through an online survey or in other ways¹. Most of all, IFN is grateful to those who took part in the 2017 Week and ensured that its message reached a wider audience than ever before.

About Inter Faith Week

Inter Faith Week takes place every November, beginning on Remembrance Sunday and running for 8 days. Its aims are to:

- Strengthen good inter faith relations at all levels
- Increase awareness of the different and distinct faith communities in the UK, in particular celebrating and building on the contribution which their members make to their neighbourhoods and to wider society
- Increase understanding between people of religious and non-religious beliefs

Inter Faith Week was initiated in 2009 by the Inter Faith Network for the UK (IFN), in partnership for the first year with the then Department for Communities and Local Government. It is marked in England, Northern Ireland and Wales. The Week drew inspiration from the pioneering Scottish Interfaith Week, led by Interfaith Scotland, which has run since 2004 and with which it works in close relationship².

The Week is supported and led by IFN as part of its overall work to support the development and deepening of cooperation and good relations between people of different faiths in the UK, working on the Week with the Northern Ireland Inter Faith Forum and the Inter-faith Council for Wales.

Inter Faith Week 2017 took place from 12–19 November. It was the ninth Week in England and Wales³, and more activities took place than ever before. The Week was a time of celebration, enquiry and learning. It was also an opportunity for people of different faiths to come together to make a positive difference in their communities. This was especially pertinent in a year that witnessed many painful moments, and where hate crime and terrorism were yet again in the news – Inter Faith Week showed how people can come together to resist the wedges of division.

The Week is part of a year-round pattern of activity. 77% of survey respondents said that they were planning a follow-up activity after the Week.

Follow Inter Faith Week on Twitter through @IFWeek, on Facebook at www.facebook.com/IFWeek or on Instagram at www.instagram.com/ifweek.

² In 2017, Scottish Interfaith Week took place at the same time as the Week in the rest of the UK. Basic details of Scottish Interfaith Week events were listed by agreement on the Inter Faith Week website. The 2018 Week in Scotland will be taking place at the same time as Inter Faith Week.

³ The eighth such Week in Northern Ireland

Inter Faith Week 2017 – the biggest Week yet!

Inter Faith Week 2017 was the largest Week to date, both in terms of activities held and people reached. 702 activities are known to have taken place across England, Northern Ireland and Wales⁴.

Many thousands of people took part in these activities, in dozens of towns and cities and in rural areas.

The Week according to participants...

“We mark Inter Faith Week every year as we believe it’s important to make sure everyone in our community can respect each other’s differences and we can all get along.”

HEADTEACHER, RED HILL PRIMARY SCHOOL, WORCESTER

“Building good relationships and working partnerships between people of different faiths and beliefs is part of the year-round work of many people and organisations across the UK. Having a special Week provides a focal point, so that more people are made aware of the importance of inter faith efforts.”

YORK INTERFAITH GROUP

“Inter Faith Week is a timely opportunity to celebrate tolerance and integration, and to build on the great relationships that already exist across Middlesbrough.”

MAYOR OF MIDDLESBROUGH

“Inter Faith Week gave a great opportunity to invite young people of different faiths to gather in friendship and openness. It was tremendously important to enable young people to express their faith and share what is important to them, and to be inspired by one another’s story and strong sense of identity, as well as rejoicing in what we hold in common.”

CHAIR, SOUTH CARDIFF INTERFAITH NETWORK

“Inter Faith Week focuses on increasing understanding, respect and co-operation between different faiths.”

COUNCILLOR, LEICESTER CITY COUNCIL

“Inter Faith Week is about reflecting on our commonality as well as our diversity. This week is about fostering greater interaction between people from different backgrounds and faiths so that we can have open conversations. That doesn’t mean we should all be the same – it means we should celebrate our differences whilst having a better appreciation of each other’s beliefs.”

CHAIR, FAITHS FORUM FOR LONDON

100% of survey respondents said that their Inter Faith Week activity helped them to engage new people

4 More than 80 activities also took place to mark Scottish Interfaith Week, which is led by Interfaith Scotland.

An amazing array of activities

Inter Faith Week 2017 saw an amazing array of activities take place. They included:

- multi-faith Remembrance events and ceremonies
- dialogues and discussion
- social action projects
- faith trails, walks and pilgrimages
- peace and non-violence events
- arts, culture and music activities
- celebrations and festivals
- open door days at local places of worship
- activities at higher and further education institutions
- school activities
- inter faith sporting activities
- women's activities
- activities organised by or with local authorities and other public agencies, including the emergency services
- national initiatives and special online projects and social media campaigns.

Who took part?

The 702 activities that took place to mark the Week in England, Wales and Northern Ireland involved over 750 organisations of many kinds. The chart below shows a breakdown of organisations by type.⁵ In addition to those organisations that directly contributed to events, others supported the Week by encouraging participation. This includes media organisations, local and national faith-based bodies, businesses and not-for-profit organisations; sports bodies and SACREs, among others. 53% of survey respondents worked with new partners for the first time during the Week.

The Near Neighbours Programme of the Church Urban Fund and the Inter Faith Youth Trust supported with grants a number of events during the Week.

Types of activity

An enormous range of activities was held to mark Inter Faith Week. The chart below shows activities according to number and type held in England, Wales and Northern Ireland.⁶

The category 'other' includes 60 activities such as media broadcasts, film screenings, displays or the publication of online resources. 70% of survey respondents did something they had not done before during the Week.

⁶ This is based on the categories of event on the Inter Faith Week website event submission form. Activities are sometimes assigned to multiple categories, so the total is not equal to the total number of events.

⁷ Mitzvah Day 2017 took place on Sunday 19 November, the final day of Inter Faith Week. Mitzvah Day activities with an inter faith dimension were listed on the Inter Faith Week website by agreement.

Spreading the word

The Inter Faith Network for the UK publicised the Week throughout the preceding months, using a dedicated website www.interfaithweek.org, targeted mailings, a widely distributed flyer, badges, Twitter and Facebook and, for the first time, Instagram.

The Inter Faith Week branding was available for download on the Inter Faith Week website to assist with publicity, and this was widely used.

Activity holders promoted their activities online and with many colourful flyers and posters, some of which can be seen below:

Social media

Inter Faith Week 2017 was the biggest Week to date on social media, with Twitter, Facebook and Instagram being widely used to spread the message of the Week, as well as news and information about events and activities.

Inter Faith Week was active on Twitter, Facebook and Instagram in the build up to the Week and throughout the Week itself. Inter Faith week is at 'IFWeek' on all three platforms.

On Twitter, use of the hashtags #InterFaithWeek and #IFWeek was encouraged, with the former being most widely used. In total, tweets about the Week had a potential reach of 13.4 million Twitter users, the most to date, registering around 40.4 million potential impressions. On Facebook, people were encouraged to 'like' the Inter Faith Week page.

Prominent figures and organisations tweeted and posted about the Week, including the Prime Minister, Lord Bourne of Aberystwyth, the Mayor of London, the Chief Rabbi, a number of government departments, and many IFN member bodies.

Inter Faith Week also worked with the National Union of Students to run a special social media campaign, #IFWCoffeeconvo, encouraging informal conversations about faith and belief during the Week.

Some examples of tweets shared during the Week are below:

Traditional media

Inter Faith Week has a strongly local focus and in 2017 the Week received excellent coverage in numerous local newspapers and on local radio. Many articles were also written about Inter Faith Week activities by member bodies and others online. There was also some coverage in national newspapers and faith and cultural news outlets.

Local news coverage significantly increases the impact of activities and strengthens programmes of work conducted for the Week. It also prompts some people to consider getting involved in inter faith activity for the first time, and encourages participation in future years.

Multi faith Remembrance and peace events

The Inter Faith Network Board of Trustees decided that Inter Faith Week would begin on Remembrance Sunday and it has done so since 2016. The Week is arranged to begin on that day to allow people of different faiths and beliefs to mark this together, remembering the service of soldiers and civilians of many faiths.

Many Inter Faith Week Remembrance events were held, including some at war memorials and places of worship. Multi faith events were held by many different organisations. Some events had a specific focus, such as looking at themes of war and peace within religions.

“Inter Faith Week begins each year with Remembrance Sunday and provides an opportunity for many different beliefs to gather and remember as well as network, connect and understand one another.”

Social action and social issues

The Week was marked in a number of areas through multi-faith social action projects helping local communities through practical activities such as collecting and distributing clothing and toiletries for refugees; meals for the homeless; and improving local parks and other social amenities.

Many were joint projects to mark both Inter Faith Week and Mitzvah Day, which took place on the last day of the Week. Inter Faith Week works closely with Mitzvah Day which, led by the Jewish community, is one of three major days of faith-linked social action in the year, along with Sewa Day and Sadaqa Day.

The Week also saw a wide range of discussions and workshops looking from a religion and belief perspective at such issues such as hate crime, religious discrimination, segregation, health, environmentalism, and refugees and migration.

Standing together

During 2017 there were terrorist attacks at the Manchester Arena and in London at Westminster Bridge, London Bridge, Finsbury Park and Parsons Green.

Several Inter Faith Week events had strong ‘standing together’ dimensions or tackled issues around hate crime, which had spiked in some areas in the wake of attacks.

There was discussion about hate crime and how to report it, the role that faith communities have to play in tackling hate crime and also prejudice, and how young people can come together to stand up against these. In some areas, such as Cheshire, the police led on such events and discussions.

Earlier in the year IFN had published ‘Looking After One Another: The Safety and Security of our Faith Communities’ in partnership with the Crown Prosecution Service, the then Department of Communities and Local Government, the Home Office, the National Fire Chiefs’ Council and the National Police Chiefs’ Council. Copies of this were made available for Inter Faith Week events. The resource can be downloaded at www.interfaith.org.uk/resources/looking-after-one-another-the-safety-and-security-of-our-faith-communities-2017.

“In recent months we have seen how faith communities have come together to offer help to people caught up in appalling incidents and tragedies – literally throwing open their doors to offer sanctuary. They have been superb.

Inter Faith Week gives us an opportunity to celebrate the contribution that faith communities make and show how that can be strengthened by working together.”

Arts, culture and music

For many participants, Inter Faith Week is an opportunity to display the arts, culture, and music of different faith communities.

People of different faiths and beliefs came together in schools and universities, places of worship, and arts institutions to both create and celebrate religion and the arts with workshops, exhibitions, musical and cultural performances and art and photography competitions.

Celebrating

Inter Faith Week provides an excellent opportunity for communities to celebrate their diversity and the contributions made by faith groups and inter faith organisations to their communities. Events were organised by faith groups, inter faith bodies, local authorities and many others.

Celebrations took place at schools, colleges and universities and at places of worship and museums. Activities focused on bringing people together to learn about different faiths and beliefs, and to recognise the positive contributions that they make to communities.

Beyond the UK, Gibraltar organised its own special celebration to mark the Week, and the British High Commission in Hyderabad, India, organised a week-long programme of activities.

“Inter Faith Week allows us to come together to celebrate and acknowledge religious diversity in our borough.”

Sport events

Inter Faith Week saw a number of sporting events being held, encouraging the building of mutual respect and understanding through physical activity. Multi-faith sporting activities are an excellent way to bring together people from different backgrounds, and can contribute to fostering positive relations between people of different faiths and beliefs within communities.

Events included inter faith football matches, such as those organised by Surrey FA Youth Forum, Carshalton Athletic FC, Manchester Jewish Soccer League, the Abu Hanifah Foundation and others. Other events included a cycle ride around places of worship, organised by Westminster City Council along with the Westminster Faith Exchange and Cycle Confident, a Kabaddi tournament and a yoga session.

Using the Power of Sport to Build Good Inter Faith Relations

On 14 November the Inter Faith Network for the UK, in partnership with Sporting Equals, held a special Inter Faith Week symposium entitled ‘Using the Power of Sport to Build Good Inter Faith Relations’.

The symposium provided an excellent opportunity for practitioners from the world of sport and from inter faith initiatives to explore how sport can help people of different backgrounds to meet one another, come to understand each other better, develop skills for cooperation and build stronger inter faith relations.

The event was held at Leicester Tigers’ stadium and participants came from national sports organisations, regional sports clubs, public sector organisations, and faith and inter faith bodies. Presenters at the symposium in plenary and in workshops were: Arsenal FC in the Community; Association of Muslim Schools Inter Faith Games Programme; Burnley Football Club; Building Bridges in Burnley; Essex County Cricket Club; Gwent Police Multi Faith Panel; the Inter Faith Network for the UK; Ministry of Housing, Communities and Local Government; Near Neighbours programme of the Church Urban Fund; Premiership Rugby; Sporting Equals; the English Federation of Disability Sport; University of Leicester Unit for Diversity, Inclusion and Community Engagement; Windsor and Maidenhead Community Forum; and the Women in Sport Project, Manchester.

The report on the symposium can be downloaded at: www.interfaith.org.uk/resources/using-the-power-of-sport-to-build-good-inter-faith-relations.

“Sport is not always recognised for its wider benefits. Sport is a great tool to build social interaction between communities particularly those that have little engagement or understanding. It provides a platform for real dialogue and discussion of sensitive issues to help break down myths and barriers”.

Sharing and learning

Inter Faith Week is a great way to boost religious literacy; a time for people to learn about the faith and beliefs that their neighbours hold dear and that help shape their lives.

In 2017 numerous activities were held where people shared their own beliefs alongside learning about the beliefs of others. This happened in the context of visits to places of worship, multi-faith discussion panels, dialogues and multi-faith meals as well as university 'speed faithing' encounters.

Other organisers celebrating Inter Faith Week chose to run fairs, inviting communities to showcase their faith and beliefs to members of the public and passers-by.

At some of the more formal events, representatives of faith communities shared what their faith means to them, and speakers were invited to raise awareness of particular traditions or beliefs.

Lord Bourne of Aberystwyth, Minister for Faith, chose the Week to launch a tour of 42 places of worship.

“Inter Faith Week plays a huge part in bringing people from all faiths and none together. Through learning about the faiths of others we are able to embrace not only our strong British values but those beliefs and values that the community in Gravesham hold dearly.”

COUNCILLOR, GRAVESHAM BOROUGH COUNCIL

“We live in challenging times and the Week offers a wonderful opportunity to create and demonstrate friendship and solidarity, as well as to learn about the different faiths and beliefs of other people.”

86% of survey respondents said that their Inter Faith Week activity helped participants to learn more about people of different faiths and beliefs

Discussion and debate

Inter Faith Week 2017 provided an opportunity for people of different faiths and beliefs to talk together about many issues such as:

- making a difference together to their local community and neighbourhoods
- breaking down of stereotypes and tackling prejudice
- widening involvement
- how to build positive relations between faith communities in the UK
- conflict resolution
- and building understanding between faith communities and non-religious belief groups

Women's events

Many Inter Faith Week events provided an opportunity for women of faith to come together for dialogue, discussion and social action. The Week saw women of different faiths meeting to learn from one another, form new friendships and discuss issues of common concern.

Activities included a bring and share meal, a yoga session, multi-faith storytelling and discussion of social issues such as combatting hate crime and the importance of standing together.

Scottish Interfaith Week

Scottish Interfaith Week has taken place since 2004 and is led by Interfaith Scotland.

The theme for Scottish Interfaith Week 2017 was 'Creativity and the Arts'. Over 80 activities took place across Scotland.

Scottish Interfaith Week was launched at a special event at Discovery Point in Dundee.

A new dedicated Scottish Interfaith Week website was launched ahead of the Week, along with new social media accounts. This is at www.scottishinterfaithweek.org. It is also on Twitter at @FollowSIFW and on Facebook at www.facebook.com/FollowSIFW/.

Scottish Interfaith Week and Inter Faith Week work closely together and in 2017 their dates were the same.

Scottish Interfaith Week will take place from 11–18 November 2018. Its theme will be 'Connecting Generations'.

Three great resources

89% of 2017 Inter Faith Week survey respondents indicated that they were definitely or likely to mark the Week in 2018. Whether you have held an event before, or are planning one for the first time, here are some helpful resources to assist with this:

The Inter Faith Week Toolkit

'The Inter Faith Week Toolkit' is packed with activity ideas for marking the Week as well as examples and illustrations drawn from the many successful activities held for the Week in previous years.

'The Toolkit' can be downloaded at www.interfaithweek.org/resources/toolkit

Inter Faith Learning, Dialogue and Cooperation: Next Steps

'Inter Faith Learning, Dialogue and Cooperation: Next Steps' is a resource for people who have attended an event or followed the Week on social media and want to get further involved in inter faith activity.

'Next Steps' can be downloaded at www.interfaithweek.org/resources/next-steps

Let's Talk: Practical pointers for inter faith dialogue

'Let's Talk: Practical pointers for inter faith dialogue' contains short reflections and examples drawn from the work of the Inter Faith Network for the UK and its member bodies, with the aim of inspiring and encouraging further discussion and engagement. It also contains practical pointers for dialogue, and includes sections on what makes for effective and successful dialogues and how difficult issues may best be approached. 'Let's Talk' can be downloaded at www.interfaith.org.uk/resources/lets-talk-practical-pointers-for-inter-faith-dialogue

All three resources are also available in hard copy on request from the IFN office.

Inter Faith Week 2018

11–18 November

An opportunity to:

- Strengthen good inter faith relations at all levels
- Increase awareness of the different and distinct faith communities in the UK, in particular celebrating and building on the contribution which their members make to their neighbourhoods and to wider society
- Increase understanding between people of religious and non-religious beliefs
